Learn How National Healthcare Reform Will Impact Farmers

The National Healthcare Act, will impact all agriculture employers to some degree. The SC Department of Agriculture, SC Farm Bureau, and Lowcountry Labor Company have invited Frank Gasperini, Executive Vice President of the National Council of Agricultural Employers, to lead a meeting for farm producers to discuss the impacts of the healthcare act.

The meeting will be held from 10:30 a.m. until noon on Feb. 27 at the Phillips Market Center at the Farmers Market, 3483 Charleston Hwy, West Columbia. Lunch is not provided.

For 50 years, the National Council of Agricultural Employers has served as the national trade association representing the needs of labor intensive agricultural employers in Washington, D.C.

Gasperini's background includes more than 35 years of specialty and production agricultural sales, marketing, association management, and lobbying state and federal legislators and regulators on behalf of domestic agriculture. He has followed the National Healthcare issue closely and is well versed on what remains a very fluid issue.

While some areas of the law remain unclear, Gasperini will provide a great overview of what is known and the direction the rules appear to be going for agricultural employers. Since the National Healthcare Act may also have a significant impact on those who employ temporary migrant labor to harvest crops, the meeting will provide significant information for all farmers.

Solar Farm Brings Exciting Possibilities

When you say, "Reach for the sun," that's exactly what technology is doing. A new solar farm in Walterboro is the latest and most exciting advance in energy production in South Carolina.

The idea behind a solar farm is to harness the energy of the sun and convert it to practical uses, like electricity. A group of us braved bitterly cold temperatures on Jan. 24 to celebrate the opening of a solar farm that could revolutionize power sources across our state.

While the idea of using solar energy has been around forever, it takes a complex set of factors for it to become a reality. Fortunately we have the expertise and the commitment of the right group of partners to make it happen. TIG Sun Energy of North Charleston, in conjunction with Santee Cooper and our state's electric cooperatives, has installed more than 10,000 solar modules on 14 acres in Colleton County to turn sunlight into energy.

New SCDA Assistant Commissioner to Focus on Agribusiness Development

Assistant Commissioner
Clint Leach

The South Carolina Department of Agriculture (SCDA) recently gained a new Assistant Commissioner of External Affairs and Agribusiness Development. Late last year when Clint Leach joined the SCDA team, he brought years of experience from working as a member of staff with the SC Senate Finance Committee.

Commissioner Hugh Weathers and SCDA created the position Leach now fills, to help legislators on both the state and national level better understand the value of agribusiness. So many groups are working hard to expand South Carolina agribusiness and the need for Leach's position is vital.

"Having someone focused primarily on economic development as it pertains to agribusiness will help SCDA better serve the industry. Clint is already a great asset to our team," said Commissioner Weathers.

Much of the effort to grow our industry deals with building coalitions and working with other agencies, like the Department of Commerce. Commissioner Weathers believes Leach is well suited for the task, and he already recognizes the great potential agribusiness has for growth beyond its significant economic impact of $34 billion.

"Today, more than ever, whether connected to a farm or not, people want to be involved in buying local agricultural products. Take for example the Certified SC program, which is already extremely successful. When you pair that with an agricultural community that is united as an industry, I truly believe we have an opportunity unlike any other, to grow agribusiness in every corner of the state," said Leach.

If you would like to contact Clint Leach about an agribusiness matter, he can be reached at 803-734-2191 or jcleach@scda.sc.gov.

Commissioners Cup BBQ Cook Off Promises Great Food, Fun

Get your grill on! The 3rd annual Commissioners Cup BBQ cook-off is becoming one of the most popular events in the Midlands. Set for March 21 and 22 at the State Farmers Market, the cook off will be bigger and better than ever, according to organizer Jackie Moore.

This year 50 cook teams will compete for more than $5,000 in prize money. On Friday the teams will prepare chicken wings, donated by House of Raeford, in the Anything Butt competition judged by celebrity judges.

The farm is actually more of a laboratory, according to Grant Reeves, senior vice president of The InterTech Group that initiated the project. Its mission is to evaluate solar panel tracking systems to determine which ones are the most productive. Fixed panels track the movement of the sun, while tilt panels actually turn throughout the day.

How well solar panels convert sunlight into electric power is a key area of research. The sun’s energy is converted into alternating current electricity before being transmitted to a substation about a mile away. At its peak the farm will create enough electricity to power about 300 homes annually.

The project will provide valuable information on the cost and operations of solar farms. It also leads the way for many more solar developments in South Carolina.

I had the privilege of meeting Jerry Zucker, the founder of The InterTech Group, about eight years ago. He was a fascinating fellow, with a keen mind that led him to degrees in math and physics, plus a graduate degree in electrical engineering. In his early years, he worked for Hudson Pulp & Paper Corporation in Florida, holding nearly a dozen patents for that company.

Later he and a business partner purchased Raybestos-Manhattan’s Charleston facility. Within five years, the company had grown into a multinational manufacturing holding company, The InterTech Group, Inc.

Jerry loved science and technology, and he owned more than 300 patents. Since his death in 2008, his family members have continued to guide The InterTech Group, Inc. Today his wife, Anita Zucker, is the CEO of the company.

We are grateful for that guidance and we welcome this new type of farm as it works to grow South Carolina’s energy production.

National Training Helps SCDA Keep Track on Keeping Standards for Weights and Measures

Have you ever wondered who keeps the original or international standards for weight, time, temperature and volume? Members of the South Carolina Department of Agriculture’s Consumer Protection Division recently discovered the answer.

Assistant Commissioner Derek Underwood and Metrology Quality Manager Terry Wessinger attended the Fundamentals of Metrology seminar at the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) in Gaithersburg, MD last month.

The purpose of the workshop was to maintain and document NIST traceable measurements. Training topics included concepts of the National State Laboratory Program, measurement assurance, calibration uncertainties, laboratory management and quality management systems.

Why do all of those things matter? Think about making copies of a document like the Declaration of Independence. Over time copies of the document start to fade and become hard to read, but we can look at the original, well-preserved document, or the standard, for verification. It is the same with weights and volumes.

How do we know the ruler we buy at the store is actually 12 inches? How are we sure that we are pumping 10 gallons of gas? How do we know that our prescription medicine is really 10 milligrams? Why is a kilogram a kilogram? Why is a yard a yard? What about a mile?

Since 1972, the SC Metrology Laboratory has maintained the accuracy of NIST based measurement standards for the entire state. The laboratory calibrates weights from 1 mg (that’s the weight of the tip of your eyelash) to 5,000 pounds and volume standards up to 1,500 gallons. Calibration services are available to state and local governments, as well as businesses of all sizes. Measurement accuracy affects the price paid when purchasing gas, meat, produce or anything sold by weight or volume. The Metrology laboratory helps ensure consumers get the correct amounts of the items they purchase.

The SC Metrology Program has the benefit of a very stable staff. In the lab’s 42 year existence, only six Metrologists have handled its daily operations. The lab is currently managed by Robert McGee and is staffed by Ed Mendenhall, Billy Kennington, and Terry Wessinger.

Commissioners Cup BBQ Cook Off

Bluegrass music, vendors, and food trucks will be on site to entertain the crowd on Friday night from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. A number of farm-related displays will be exhibited, as well as lots of terrific food. WP Rawls will supply samples of kale salad to go with the chicken wings.

On Saturday the teams will cook pork butts for sampling. First place brings a check of $1,000, second place wins $600, and third $300. The judging is a blind taste operated under the rules of the Southern Barbecue Network. The pork butts will be supplied by Piggly Wiggly/Smithfield. To qualify for the grand champion award which brings another $600—teams must compete in all three categories.

Pork ribs will earn $1000, $600, and $300 for the winning teams. Live country music by Cody Webb will accompany Saturday’s activities. Food trucks will have everything from corn dogs to chicken strips, fries, cheesecake, crepes, and ice cream. The event will run from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. At 2:30 SC Commissioner of Agriculture Hugh Weathers will name the SC State Champion and distribute prize money and unique trophies to all winners. The festival will offer “a whole bunch of stuff for kids,” said Moore, including face painting, a jumpy house and slide, and FFA-organized ag-related games. Adults will enjoy vendors ranging from Tupperware to Pampered Chef to Specialty Foods, in addition to the regular Farmers Market produce and many displays.

This year the event is free to the public. Tickets will be available for purchase to sample the barbecue. A People’s Choice award will also be awarded.

The competition is limited to the first 50 cook teams, and lots of first timers have already signed up. The deadline is March 7. Applications and information are available on the website, www.agriculture.sc.gov or by emailing jmoore@scda.sc.gov. Proceeds will benefit Harvest Hope food bank.
